NOSTALGIA DE LA LUZ (Nostalgia for the light)

by Patricio Guzman

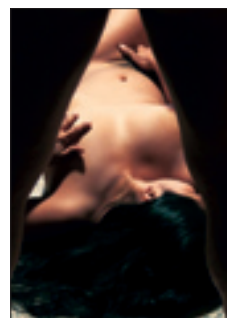

(Documentary)

Nostalgia for the light is a film full of poetry, philosophical and personal reflections on the passage of time, the weak and volatile line that present time means in our human lives. The filmmaker takes us to a surprising and unexpected journey. In the vast Atacama desert in northern Chile operate six major international observatories, the most sophisticated and powerful on the planet. There, scientists around the world detect the oldest light in the universe to know a little better the future of Earth. A few kilometres from the telescopes in the same desert, the relatives of Pinochet's victims seek the bodies of their "disappeared" family members which are still buried in mass graves for over 30 years. They seek with their own hands the marks of a past still uncertain in order to be able to mourn their loss and to build the future of their children. The film unites these two searches.
